Landslide Nets Center 803 of 1,465 Votes In Union Elections

Middle Politics Established
As Philosophy of the Student Body

Leaders Claim
Liberal Victory

Observers Discount Significance of 54.8 Per Cent Preference

"Middle-of-the-road" politics was the choice of 803 of the 1,465 George Washington students who stepped into the voting machines on campus Thursday and Friday to establish the constituency of the Student Union on "national issues" and give the Center Party a landslide victory over the Right and Left.

Leaders of the Center Party immediately claimed victory for liberalism, the brand of government which they advocate in their platform.

Observers, however, were inclined to discount the significance of the 54.8 per cent preference as a "clear" indication of student opinion on national politics on the basis of the natural inclination of the uninformed voter to pick the middle course. There were 141 more votes cast for the Center Party than for the Left and Right combined.

Lefts Claim "Moral Victory"
On the other hand the Left Party was claiming "a moral victory," having polled 344 votes, 26 votes less the Right total, without the aid of electioneering at the polls, a privilege given the Center and Right.

"Oratorical pressure" applied to the voters as they neared the polling places gave the latter two parties an advantage over the Left.

The Left Party, however, stole a large share of the pre-election publicity, considered to be worth many votes, by playing the role of "step-child" and withdrawing from the Union two nights before the shiny new voting machines began clicking off the preferences.

Lefts Repudiate Union
Dramatically issuing a statement in true "radical" fashion on the eve of the all-University political rally addressed by President Marvin in the gymnasium, the leaders of the Left charged the Union had been "so hampered that it cannot fulfill its purpose of portraying student opinion."

Sunday after the fury of battle had subsided, and the Left Party had been assured of 25 seats of 101 in the new Union as it sits in council, its leaders issued another statement confessing an error in its

Relations Club Debates Peace

Hiss Discusses Isolation-
ists, Cooperationists
On Neutrality

Neutrality from the isolationist's point of view and the cooperationist's theory of insuring international peace were questions taken up by the International Relations Club Wednesday night.

Alger Hiss, formerly legal adviser to the Senate, Munitions Investigation Committee, spoke before the group, outlining the basic principles of the two policies. Isolation, he pointed out, means absolute political and economic abstinence in our relations with belligerents.

Isolationists, he reminded, do not recognize the effectiveness of organized effort to maintain international peace. He then outlined the cooperationist's theory, which recognizes collective action by means of sanctions against an aggressor nation as the best means of assuring world peace.

The majority opinion among members of the Club as to the relative merits of these two policies was that cooperation in the matter of imposing economic sanctions against an aggressor nation would have the effect of localizing the conflict, thereby preventing another World War.

The opinion was expressed that, in case of a general European war, our chance of keeping out under any neutrality policy is practically impossible for economic reasons; and that, in the present European situation, this country should cooperate with the other great powers to weaken the strength of a nation which is a menace to world peace.

Ragatz Discusses Mexican Religion

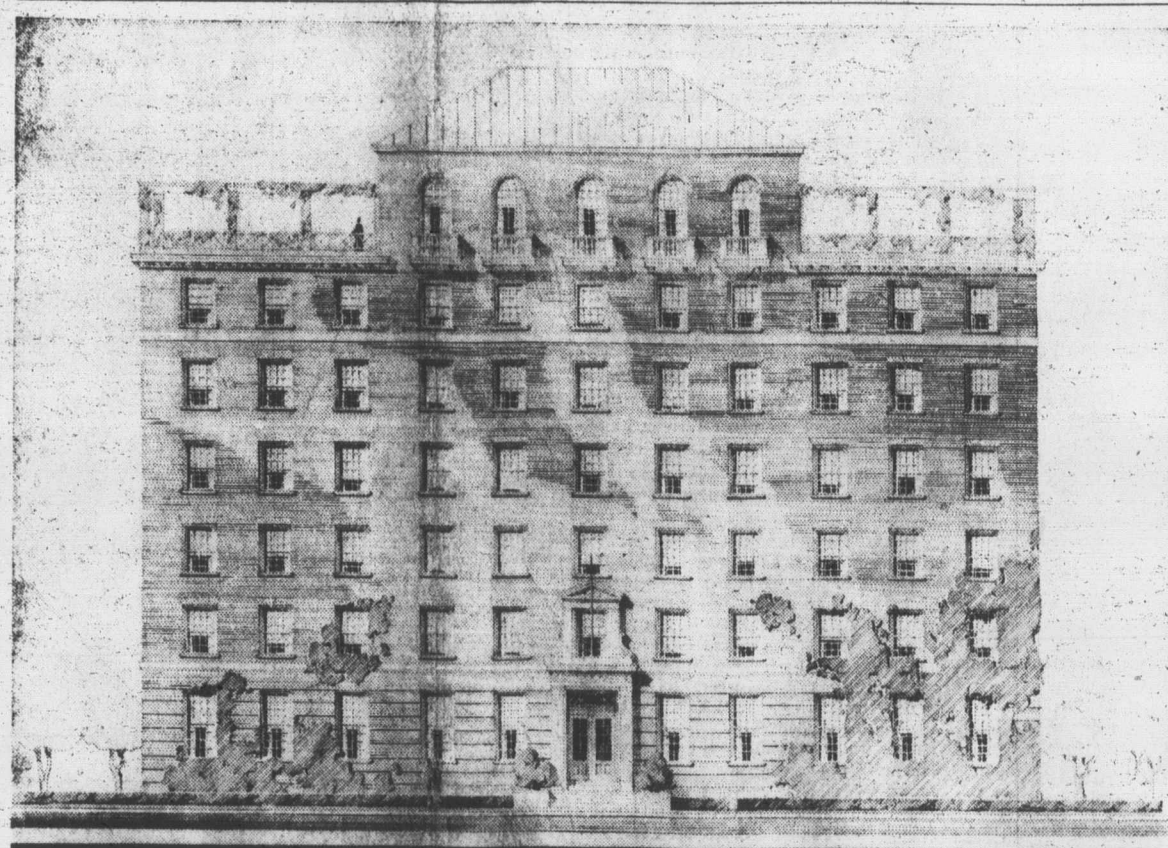

Dr. Lowell J. Ragatz, executive officer of the history department, lectured last Saturday on "The Religious Situation in Mexico" to the Teachers' Club at Rockville. "Mexico is going through a national revival," Dr. Ragatz stated. This revival manifested itself in many ways, seeking to remove alien influence. The old church, controlled from Europe, represented the strongest foreign influence. Mexico has broken with the old church as did France earlier in the century and Spain three years ago under the republic.

No Chapel This Week

Because of intervening holidays no chapel services will be held this week.

Dr. Raymond J. Seeger, assistant professor of physics, spoke in chapel last week on "National Gratitude."

Work on New Women's Dormitory Slated To Begin Before Christmas

Six-Story Building To House 100 Women

Will Be Built At 21st and G

Named "Strong Hall" In Honor of Donor; Design Is Georgian

Construction of the University's first dormitory, "Strong Hall," a residence for women, will be begun at 21st and G sts. before Christmas, the president's office announced today.

The building is another in the "dream plan" long talked of in University circles and begun last year by President Marvin.

To House 100 Women
The new building, named in honor of its donor, Mrs. Henry Alva Strong, will house about 100 women. It will be built on a lot now occupied by the president's office, and will front on 21st St. The three brick buildings on 21st St. are now owned by the University, and will be removed before construction begins.

Alexander B. Trowbridge, architect for the Folger Shakespearean Library designed the new unit, assisted by Weldon Faulkner.

Towers Six Stories
Mr. Trowbridge's designs call for a building of six floors, in Georgian style architecture. Dimensions of the structure will be approximately 125 by 140 feet. Lower floors will include parlors and reception rooms.

The main floor will include a large assembly room the full width of the building, a large fireplace in the reception hall facing the entrance, a large coat room, a general clubroom for club meetings, and the matron's quarters.

An elevator will provide service to all floors, with the shaft terminating in a pent-house on the roof. In the pent-house will be the same rooms, and the roof will be used as a sun-parlor.

The new structure will supplement facilities now offered University women at Columbian House. Sorority groups will not be rented rooms in the dormitory, it was announced, but social organizations will be permitted to use recreational facilities and halls. The sorority-fraternity housing plan now under construction will provide room for sorority women.

To Move Marvin's Office
The president's office, now occupying part of the building site, will be moved, but their future location has not been decided upon. The gift of a women's dormitory

Offices Open for Business In New Science Building

The "open for business" sign went up before three offices in the new Biological Sciences Building yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. While still in the throes of rehabilitation, the registrar and the deans of Junior and Columbian Colleges were sufficiently organized to take care of the day's business in their first floor offices.

Registrar Fred E. Nessell, with a crew of 25 janitors, moved his entire outfit, including some 250 drawers of files, into his newly complete quarters between 11 and 5 p. m. Saturday.

Sunday, beginning at 7:30 a. m., Deans Henry G. Doyle and William C. Johnstone, Jr., transferred their belongings into their offices. While moving was being completed in the first floor offices yesterday, painters and carpenters were busily engaged in finishing decoration on the third and fourth floors to make ready for the entrance of the science departments.

The two top floors will be occupied entirely by the offices, classrooms, and laboratories of the biology, botany and zoology departments. Offices will be occupied as soon as completed, and classes will go into their new quarters next semester.

Decoration of the first and second floors will be done during week-ends, since classes are in session throughout the week.

Walls of all rooms are being finished in a gray-green tone designed to ease eye-strain. The channeled ceilings are white, to assist in better illumination from the indirect chandeliers in use.

We Snoop To Conquer

Stop Holding Your Breath—The Elections Are Over... Wherein the K. A.'s Take Down Their Hair... Kanna Comes Through Again... Zetas Seek Tall, Dark and Handsome

By The Keyholders

The Student Union elections are over and we can all breathe safely for the time being. The University is saved for the Centists. However, it took the Right Party to win the election. The Rightists took a picture of the handsome Jack Willard in the campaign publicity to garner the femme votes. Overheard at the polls: As Ann Woodward was about to cast her ballot, that well-known voice from the rear shouted: "You're not a radical, are you?" Ann murmured: "No, I'm a Chi Omega pledge."

Our secret agent, No. 308-A (that would be Dickie) has given us the low-down on the Kappa Alpha Tacky Party. Of course, you'll want to know what the K.A.'s look like when they have their hair down.

There were Sadie Thompsons to spare. Among them we noticed Eldridge Loeffler, Marie Jorlemon, and Evangeline Rice. Bill Bell, who scored a sensation last year, affected long flannel underwear, nightshirt, and a red fright wig (not his own). Lucile McGeehee and Fred Hall appeared as farmers of one variety or another. Milton Scrivener simply couldn't look like anything but the well-dressed man in spite of his ragged creation. Olivia Nixon and Dallas Barr breezed in from the Chi Omega dance in evening clothes. Everyone accused him of coming as an S.A.E. because of his full dress. Incidentally, the dance permit on the bulletin board stated that the dance should be orderly in every respect, and there was a pudgy little policeman on duty to see that this was more than fiction.

The Chi Omega dance serves as an excuse for our Kanna Story-of-week. You know, of course, that Frances now seriously threatens the niche occupied last year by Gertrude Castellow. It seems that Frances secured a date for one of the sorority's pledges and gave the young man the wrong address. He

Martha Cox scored an upset win in the advanced class walk, trot and canter event in the riding meet. She placed over Eleanor Wyvell, who was a favorite to repeat her emphatic win of last year, but who came in second this year. Maxine Farley took the third place ribbon. Farley and Wyvell won first place ribbon in the riding in pairs, with Doris Miller-Janice Norton, second, and Martha Cox-Gussie Mae Hanley finishing third.

Evelyn Eibender took first honors in the walk, trot, and canter in the intermediate competition with Elva Lohr and Julia Metcalf placing. Mary Brown and Julia Metcalf won top place in the riding in pairs event of this class. Doris Eason-Jerrie Massey finishing second and Elva Lohr-Doris McKensie third.

Elaine Stauffer took the first place ribbon in the beginner's walk, trot and canter. Rose Silverman was a close second and Eloise Bennett won third place. The competitions were followed by three games—"Balloon Tag," "Musical Stalls," and "Spoon and Potato Relay," and an exhibition of jumping.

Medieval Modes Will Be Popular With Smart Girls

Blossom out. Thanksgiving night at the Student Council dance in a gown representative of your favorite foreign country.

Italy and France give us the Renaissance gowns in rich medieval colors of magenta, blue-green, amethyst, gold, deep blue and wine red, with Juliet caps and capes.

One of the cleverest gadgets featured by the medieval gowns is the amoniere, or alms bag, belt. These interesting and unusual belts have little gold or silver purses hanging on a chain from the side, just like those the grand ladies of the medieval court wore. What an ingenious way to solve the troublesome-evening bag problem!

The glamorous gals will favor equally glamorous evening frocks of gold and powdered black taffeta which are cleverly designed with low cut décolletage and wide skirts. These are sometimes worn with sleeveless coat-of-mail jackets. For more conservative-minded maidens the gown of still silk and velvets of rich colors, reminiscent of the elegance of the late 1820's, will be your stand-by on the most gala formal occasions.

The flat heeled sandals hold the spot light in the shoe line. They will go with any type of dress. Flowers, real or otherwise, bandeaus, braids, Juliet caps of gold or silver leather decorations, rayon braids, laurel wreaths of gold, silver, or bronze, all will be "tops" in head decorations for formal wear.

Delta Zeta Feted Delta Zeta will be entertained tonight at 8 p. m. at the home of Elizabeth Martin.

Sturday evening a formal dance was given by the sorority in honor of the Phi Beta Phi at the home of Majorie Dengler.

Season's Final Dance Follows Nodak Contest

Thursday night George Washington will celebrate its Thanksgiving recess with a dance in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel from 10 to 1.

The dance, the third and last of a series of football dances, is being sponsored by the Student Council. Jack Morton's orchestra will provide the music for the dance. Members of the George Washington and North Dakota varsity teams will be guests of honor.

Tickets for the dance are selling at $1.50 per couple and may be had from members of the dance committee or at the door.

Harry Ames, social chairman of the Student Council, is chairman of the arrangements committee. He is assisted by Frank Hand, secretary to the Social Committee. The dance will not follow immediately after the game it celebrates as have the preceding dances of the season. Because of this, formal dress will be in order for women.

Cotillion December 14 Mistletoe Cotillion, annual Christmas dance of the Newman Club, will be held Dec. 14 at the National Women's Country Club. Jack Morton's orchestra will provide music for dancing from 10 to 1. Aileen O'Connor is chairman of the committee in charge. Tickets at $2 a couple may be purchased from members of the committee: Dorothy Mattingly, Ralph Northrup, and Raymond Stanley, or at the door.

Delta Zeta Feted Delta Zeta will be entertained tonight at 8 p. m. at the home of Elizabeth Martin. Sturday evening a formal dance was given by the sorority in honor of the Phi Beta Phi at the home of Majorie Dengler.

Council Plans Dance Dec. 7

In addition to the annual Interfraternity Prom, the Interfraternity Council will give a dance Saturday, Dec. 7, from 11 to 2 at the Sigma Nu House.

Jack Morton's nine-piece orchestra will supply the music for the affair. Bruce Kerr and John Molyneux are in charge of arrangements. Tickets will be sold for $1.00 per couple.

Mrs. Mary M. Gardner, grand vice-president of Theta Upsilon sorority, talked on "Sorority Rushing" at the meeting of the Panhellenic Council held Nov. 11 in Corcoran Hall.

She discussed the advisability of sororities having as few rules as possible, and suggested the elimination of silence periods during rushing. The Council is planning for the near future a series of round-table discussions on rushing in which all sorority women will take part.

Chi Upsilon Meets Chi Upsilon, women's geology fraternity, will meet December 6, in Room 101, Building H, at 8 p. m. A lecture on Alaska will be given, supplemented by a moving picture.

Volley Ball Tournament Ends Today

A. D. Pi's, Kappa's, and Phi Sigma Sigma's Are Finalists

Alpha Delta Pi, Kappa Kappa Gamma and Phi Sigma Sigma emerged victorious as the schedule in the three leagues of the annual women's intramural volley ball tournament was completed yesterday.

Phi Sigma Sigma will meet Alpha Delta Pi today at one o'clock in the gym and the winner will tangle with Kappa Kappa Gamma for the intramural crown at 1:45.

Kappa Kappa Gamma clinched the title in League Three by defeating the Colonial Campus Club yesterday. Phi Sigma Sigma won by default over Zeta Tau Alpha to top League One while Alpha Delta Pi won by default over Beta Phi Alpha Friday.

The Colonial Campus Club ran second with three wins and one loss in League Three, as Kappa Kappa Gamma won with two wins and no losses. Phi Mu, last year's champions, finished with no wins and two losses. Alpha Delta Theta and Chi Omega tied for second place in League Two with one win and one loss each, finishing behind Alpha Delta Theta with three wins and no losses. Phi Sigma Sigma, with three wins and one loss, ended above Zeta Tau Alpha, who had two wins and but two losses.

Speech Group Initiates Three

Reba Edelman, Susan Slater, and Verna Volz will be initiated into Sigma Delta Phi, honorary speech fraternity for women, Sunday, Dec. 8, at the home of Maxine Kahn.

Miss Edelman has been prominent in varsity debate and publications during her stay in the University. Last year she debated against William and Mary and West Virginia.

Dramatics has been the forte of Miss Slater. She has taken part in two Cue and Curtain productions, "R. U. R." and "The Torchbearers", and is secretary-treasurer of the club. She will play the part of Midge Mercer in "She Loves Me Not".

Miss Volz is prominent in dramatics and publications. Last year she appeared in "The Torchbearers" and "Goodbye Again". She was 1935 winner of the Hour Glass cup for the most outstanding sophomore woman. A reception will follow the initiation ceremonies.

Phi Pi Epsilon Gives Tea Phi Pi Epsilon, professional foreign service sorority, entertained its opening rush tea Sunday afternoon. The receiving line was composed of Dorothy Smith, president; Frances Crawford, secretary; and Verna Schult, treasurer.

Third Annual Speech Meet Date Is Set

High School Students Will Convene Here on December 13-14

The third annual meeting of the George Washington High School Public Speaking Convention, sponsored by the Department of Public Speaking, will be held on Dec. 13 and 14, according to Dr. Willard H. Yeager.

The conference, which brings together public speaking students from Washington, Baltimore, and vicinity, will discuss this year, "Resolved: That the several states should establish medical service to be available to their citizens at the public expense."

Thirteen high schools were represented at the conference in 1933. Last year the number was 23. This year, according to Professor Yeager, 11 schools have already accepted invitations to send delegates.

The conference will begin Friday morning, Dec. 13, with a debate on the subject by two experts in the field.

During the afternoon the delegates will be divided into three groups, each of which will treat different phases of the subject. Saturday morning the whole conference will meet in open forum and discuss the resolutions and the whole subject. It is the custom of the University to entertain the students and their faculty advisers at a luncheon at the close of the conference Saturday noon.

Student officers to preside over the convention will be elected on the morning of Dec. 13.

Cue & Curtain Selects Dates

"She Loves Me Not" Will Be Presented December 12 and 13

"She Loves Me Not," Cue and Curtain's first production of the season, will be presented Friday and Saturday, Dec. 13 and 14, in Roosevelt High School Auditorium, Al Heckel, production manager, announced last week.

This is the first time Cue and Curtain has used the high school auditorium, though Troubadour's has used it for the past two years.

The cast of the play, which includes Betty Crawford, Charles Hoyt, Austin Cunningham, Sue Slater, Thadine Noel, and Margaret Long, is in rehearsal on the story of the Hilarity Club dancer who seeks refuge from the police in a Princeton dormitory.

The play has been adapted by Director Marvin Beers to fit the Roosevelt stage. It will be presented in 18 scenes, using insets and regular sets as well.

Tickets sales are under the direction of Ross Pope, business manager. Cue and Curtain office in Building S will be open daily for the sale of tickets in addition to the many student salesmen.

Library Alumni Publish Articles

Mortimer H. Davenport, '31, last month brought out the most recent work published by an alumnus of the Division of Library Science. It was a mimeographed report of "United States Northeastern Penitentiary Library Operations."

James T. Rubey, '32, has recently completed a 24 page mimeographed "List of References on the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works and Its Work," to be a part of bibliographical list No. 2 of the United States Geological Survey Library.

As a part of the Geological Survey Bulletin 869, Emma M. Thom has compiled a "Bibliography of North American Geology for 1933 and 1934." The bibliography includes 3,836 items.

to the University by Mrs. Strong was announced by the Board of Trustees, of which she is a member, on Dec. 12, 1934.

"Through Mrs. Strong's generosity," Dr. Marvin stated then, "we will be able to give appropriate housing to the many women students who come to The George Washington University from all parts of the country, and to provide a center for all women's activities on the campus. This is a need that long has been keenly felt. Mrs. Strong has the heartfelt gratitude of all associated with The George Washington University. For them, this women's hall will constitute a lasting memorial to her."

Mrs. Strong, prominent in educational circles, was made a member of the Board of Trustees in 1931. She is now president of the Hattie M. Strong Foundation which gives loans to University students all over the country, and is particularly interested in foreign students. Recently she presented the Washington Y. W. C. A. with a new residence and has donated several other buildings to various colleges.

At present he is practicing privately, and is a trustee of the National Institute, and ex-president of the Architectural League of New York.

Jubilant Centrists Check Union Votes

As Charles Kiefer (left), Union elections chairman, looks on, Ted Pierson, president-elect of the new Student Union, and John Bracken, Center leader, check over the balloting that brought Center Party control over the Union with a majority of 31 seats over the Lefts, and 33 over the Rights.

earlier stand and accepting the seats. The Left had contended that the University administration was about to appoint a faculty committee to censor union activity and quit in protest.

"The Left Party withdrew under the impression that certain restrictions contrary to the original concept of the Union had been imposed upon it," the Left statement issued Sunday said. "Several of these restrictions were later proved not to exist."

"While the Left Party still stands unalterable opposed to any restrictions upon student freedom, we believe it is to the best interests of the University that a Left Party become a part of the Union."

"We intend to continue our efforts for a freer Union," Ted Pierson, the author of the entire Union idea, became president ex-officio by virtue of his being head of the Center Party. He will be backed by 54 other members of his party. The Rights obtained 22 seats.

The Union, totaling 101 seats instead of 100 as originally planned because of the proportional system of seating used, will hold its first meeting Dec. 4.

Party caucuses to name Union representatives will be held Wednesday in Corcoran for the reorganized Left Party; Sunday in Columbian House for the Rights, and Monday in Stockton 10 for the Centers.

President Marvin endorsed the Union program at the meeting and explained that two limitations have been placed upon the activities of the Union, written into the constitution by the Union itself—that the Union will not sponsor nor participate in demonstrations organized by outside groups; and it will not advocate changes in government through other than constitutional means.

Group Hears Peace Offers

Italy's Ambitions Reviewed Thursday by Noted Author

"Italy is not entirely to blame for the present conflict with Ethiopia," declared Dr. Arthur Deerin Call, secretary of the American Peace Society and editor of "World Affairs," at a meeting of Delta Phi Epsilon, national foreign service fraternity, held Thursday at the Kappa Alpha house.

After reviewing the history of Italy's imperialistic ambitions in Ethiopia, Dr. Call suggested that Italy's present attitude is a direct outgrowth of the secret treaties of the World War and of the peace treaties of 1919. International society, because it is not better organized, is more to blame than Italy, stated the speaker.

Dr. Call, who has travelled recently in Italy, declared that the rebuilding of Italy under Mussolini has been nothing less than miraculous and that the Italian people are at present solidly behind him.

The speaker also explained how the ideals of the American Peace Society are applicable at present. The Society holds that the American Constitutional Convention of 1787, which established an international organization without sanctions to enforce its covenants, is an example which might well be followed by the world in its organization for peace. He believes that this example is America's outstanding contribution to the world.

Foreign Service Group Entertained By Alumni

The alumni of Delta Phi Epsilon, national foreign service fraternity, entertained the George Washington chapter last Thursday at the Georgetown chapter house.

Brief talks on several foreign cities were given, as well as short addresses by Dr. George N. Henning, professor of romance languages, and Prof. Alan T. Delbert, national vice president of the fraternity.

Largest Amount of Tuition Paid By Navy Department

By Edmund Browning

If those who pay tuition for the privilege of attending a university can be termed customers, the United States Navy Department is the University's largest customer.

Each year 15 naval officers, most of whom are senior grade lieutenants, are registered in the Law School by the Judge Advocate General of the Navy.

With the exception of the 1931 class, approximately five officers of the staff of the Judge Advocate General have been graduated annually in law in their particular branch of the service since 1920. In 1931, the policy of the department was changed and one class was sent to Harvard. Though these men continued through that institution, in 1932 the Navy officers returned to the University.

Though some of these men are marine officers and have risen from the ranks, most of them are graduates of the United States Naval Academy.

Since there are usually 15 of these men in the Law School, the average number to graduate each June from the third year of the law course is about five. During the years in which these men have been graduated, at least one per year has made the Order of the Coif, which is composed of the upper tenth of each graduating class. In 1926 and 1935 Richard Wallace and Oswald Colquhoun, both of the Navy, led their respective classes.

Alpha Kappa Psi Initiates Brogen, Calloway and Fridinger

Col. Walter C. Clephane of the Law School faculty gave a brief history of ancient and modern law, illustrating its personal and business life, and led a forum discussion at the semi-monthly meeting of Alpha Kappa Psi, professional fraternity in commerce, at Acacia House Wednesday.

Paul Brogen, William C. Calloway, Arthur Fridinger, and M. Seth Horne were initiated into the fraternity Sunday. The initiation ceremonies were directed by Pres. Fred Bauknight, assisted by Frank C. Daniel, Jr., Clinton D. Vernon, and Vernal T. Worthington.

Dr. Leo Pasvolsky, economics adviser for the Brookings Institute, was the principal speaker at the banquet following the initiation. He spoke on the subject of "International Trade Agreements and Currency Stabilization."

Dr. Richard N. Owens, professor of accounting and business administration; Overton W. Boyd, lecturer in accounting, and new members of Alpha Kappa Psi responded to the introduction.

Flyers To See South American Airways Picture

Members Go on Combined Flight and Sailing Expedition

A talking motion picture featuring a travelogue flying the Lindbergh route will be shown by the Pan American Airways Company to members of the Flying Club, their parents, members of the faculty, and students interested in aviation, Wednesday evening, Dec. 4, at 8 p. m. in Corcoran 10.

The picture includes a trip from Miami, Fla., around South America returning to Miami through the Panama Canal and Mexico City.

Tickets may be obtained free of charge from the Hatchet office or from members of the Flying Club. Sunday, Billy Chandler, George McElroy, and George Pugh Jr., members of the Club, made a cross country flight from Congressional Airport to the Anacostia Naval Air Station.

Here they were met by Naval Lieut. M. B. Johnson, who flew them to Shadyside, Md., where they went sailing on the Chesapeake Bay.

Over the week some members participated in the first cross-country trip of the club.

Leaving from Congressional Airport, where the ship was readied Saturday afternoon, the party then proceeded to Anacostia, thence down the Bay to Judge Hayes' field, thence to Wilson's field, South River, and returned to Washington Sunday night. The trip was a combined flying and sailing expedition.

G. W. club members making the trip were Mary Virginia Trammel, C. E. Loeder, George Pugh, William Chandler, and George Chandler. Several alumni and other young Washington flyers completed the party.

Similar cross country trips will be made over week ends whenever the weather permits.

Tolman Appointed To Library Staff

Mason Tolman, graduate of the University of Chicago and the Columbian University School of Library Science, has been appointed to the staff of the University library. Mr. Tolman will be in charge of new divisional library of the natural sciences on the third floor of Building H.

By Margaret Clark
An operation being performed in Building K? How many of the students chatting idly in the sun—which always shines brightest between classes—were oblivious of what was going on so near to them. Yet at that very minute, the victim was stretched upon a table in the back room of one of the nearby buildings while an anxious crowd gathered around. There was no sound while the operator prepared for his task of fixing the broken back.

There was a slight movement of interest among the group as they watched the one standing above the table reach for the scissors and lean forward; they saw these soon exchanged for the knife and knew the real operation was under way. The sun was reflected on the deft movements of the blade and the sound of happy voices from below floated up into that serious atmosphere. Now the scissors, now other instruments—the hands worked fast and surely.

Now the mending process began. Two edges were held rigid, then quickly put in place. A tape-like substance was applied, now a soft piece of flannel on top of that and upon it all the final covering. The victim would be stiff for some time to come but thanks to the skillful operation, he had a life of many years usefulness ahead of him.

The one above the table gave a final pat and straightened up. The watchers relaxed. Another Library Science student had learned how to rebind a book.

Two Art Groups Enter Competition

Two groups of artists from the School of Fine Arts have entered the collaborative competition, sponsored by the Association of the Alumni of the American Academy in Rome, to provide a community recreational center for a city with a 12,000 population.

Wesley Budd, Archie Burgess, Muriel Chamberlain, and Myrtle Williams comprise the first or "A" group. The "B" section is composed of Harold Boutin, Mary Guille, Richard Hawes, and Mary Thoenen. The men will handle the architectural designing of the problem, and the women will take charge of the sculpturing and painting.

As outlined by the directors, the recreational center must be a building which can be used as a means for local expression of drama, music, dance, and graphic arts, as well as furnish the town at large with an attractive and inexpensive meeting place.

Six Colonials Conclude College Careers Thursday

Leemans Is Among Grads

Deming, Kolker, Rathjen, Vonder Bruegge, Plotnicki Also Go

Leemans Received All-American Mention Two Years in Row

WHEN the last whistle blows Thursday ending the North Dakota game, it will write finis to the football careers at George Washington to six men, four at least of whom will be rated in the future as Colonial "greats."

Captain Harry Deming, Tuffy Leemans, Sid Kolker, Red Rathjen, Ben Plotnicki, and Henry Vonder Bruegge will be those who will for the last time dig in their cleats and exhort vehemently, "Come on, team!" for the glory of the Buff and Blue. The first four of these are the ones who will be the Colonial representatives in the George Washington section of the football heaven.

Without thrusting the others into secondary positions, it can be easily said that the loss of Tuffy Leemans will be hardest to replace. For three years, the Bouncing Belgian has been the spearhead of the Colonial attack. Though blocking for him has not been consistent, Tuffy has managed to gain the admiration of everyone who has seen him play, including opposing coaches and players. Jimmy Kitts, coach of Rice, claimed that Tuffy was "one of the best backs he had ever seen play."

Leemans first gained recognition as a basketball player in his freshman year when he shot a long basket from the middle of the floor to defeat Tech. Tuffy went on the next year to start his climb to gridiron fame. In his sophomore year and every year since, he has won the title of "most valuable player."

For the last two years, Leemans has gained recognition from the All-American Board of Football receiving a card of merit and having a good chance to be on one of the teams this year. Jock Sutherland placed the flashy back in his All-Eastern eleven last year.

Though he has been handicapped somewhat by injuries this past season, he has played with his usual brilliance. It is impossible to single out any one game in which Tuffy was good; for he played well in every game. His work for the past three years has carved for him a niche in the George Washington hall of fame, along with Johnny Fenlon, Johnny Baker, Zuzu Stewart, and other immortals. And he deserves it.

Field Goal Booter
Second only to Leemans in importance is Captain Harry Deming. This is Deming's third year on the squad. Last year his accurate toe accounted for two victories when his field goals defeated West Virginia, 10-7, and Oklahoma, 3-0. This year his placement gave George Washington a 3-0 victory over Tulsa.

Harry has been outstanding for his great defensive work, very few plays clicking through his tackle position. He has received honorable mention on several All-Americans in the past and probably shall this year. Deming personally saw to it that his team won against their bitter rivals, Tulsa, by blocking a punt and then kicking a field goal.

Six years ago, Tech was playing Eastern in an inter-high game. Sid Kolker, playing in his first big game, blocked a kick in the first four minutes of play, picked it up and ran for the touchdown that won the game for Tech. Two years later he entered George Washington and has played varsity ball since.

Consistent Player
Sid is not a brilliant star, but he plays a consistently good game at guard and tackle. Against West Virginia this year he nearly duplicated his performance of six years ago by blocking a kick. However this time instead of scoring a touchdown on the play, Sid saw

Reinhart Wants More Court Players

Come on you basketball players!! Coach Bill Reinhart has issued a call for more varsity men. He believes there are many more men enrolled in the university capable of holding down a position on the varsity squad than are out for the team.

About 15 athletes are practicing nightly in preparation for the opening game against Shenandoah Monday week. But Reinhart realizes the team must progress with much more rapidity if it is to go anywhere against tough competition. He has expressed the desire to have about 40 candidates for the team.

Tuffy Leemans and Pete Yurwitz will report to Reinhart following the last game of the football season Thursday.

It's Goodbye to College Football for Them

W. Va., Tulsa Are Only Victors

ONLY six of George Washington's 1935 grid opponents played last week, four of these teams losing and two winning. North Dakota, the only team on the schedule that the Colonials haven't faced, was one of the losers, being turned back by Western Maryland, 14-7, at Baltimore, Saturday.

Scoring twice in the second quarter, the Green Terrors of Western Maryland dealt the North Dakota Sioux their first defeat this year. The Nodaks scored first after Jerry Searight, center, had intercepted a Terror pass and ran 40 yards to score. Charbonneau kicked the extra point.

Intercept Pass
Western Maryland's first score was made by Benjamin who snared a 20 yard heave by Campbell. The second score for the Terrors was made by Lathrop, following a sustained drive from the Dakota 28-yard line. In the final period Western Maryland was forced to play a defensive game, but the Sioux were unable to get beyond the 15-yard stripe.

The West Virginia Mountaineers routed the Washington and Jefferson Presidents, 51-0, registering the most decisive victory in the history of athletic relations which began between the two schools in 1891. The West Virginians unleashed a successful running and passing attack and played a tight defensive game. In the last period Heath, Mountaineer substitute, intercepted a W. & J. pass on his own 10-yard line and ran to a touchdown.

The Tulsa Oilers won their third game of the season against a stubborn Drake eleven, 7-0.

Rice Loses to T.C.U.
The Rice Owls were considerably mused up by the Texas Christian team, losing 27-6. The Christians, undefeated this year, unleashed a sizzling passing attack which seemed to catch the Owls flatfooted. Buck Friedman made Rice's lone tally in the first quarter. Meyer and Lawrence scored two touchdowns each for the Horned Frogs. The big thrill of this game was Klein's 66 yard return of the opening kickoff made by Rice.

The defeat eliminated the co-hort members of the championship running and raised the Rose Bowl hopes of the Christians. The Wasps of Emory and Henry were brushed aside, 14-0, by Roanoke and Davis-Elkins was beaten by St. Vincent, 9-0.

Frat Basketball Tourney Delayed

Tuesday night League B's contestants come up, with Sigma Alpha Epsilon taking on Sigma Phi Epsilon at 7 p.m.; Sigma Nu meeting Acacia at 8:45, and Tau Kappa Epsilon facing the T. U. O's at 10.

Tulsa Takes Title
By defeating the Drake Bulldogs, 7-0, Saturday, at Tulsa, the Tulsa Oilers captured the Missouri Valley Conference title.

SPORT AXE

By Sid Carroll

AFTER sundown Thursday the greatest back to wear the colors of George Washington University on the gridiron will have bid adieu to college football. He is none other than Alphonse Tuffy Leemans, Superior, Wisconsin's, gift to football.

Tuffy, as he is rightfully nicknamed, has not only brought national recognition to himself but has aided George Washington to little in its attempted climb to the crest of the football world. Leemans was chosen by the All-American Board of Football as one of the hundred outstanding players during both the '34 and '35 seasons. So this year, as he did last, Leemans stands a 9-to-1 chance of being named on the Board's All-American team.

Besides this Leemans was named on Jock Sutherland's All-Eastern eleven, Kirk Miller's All-American team and the United Press' third team last season. The Associated Press gave him honorable mention and the sports writers and coaches selected him as an All-District of Columbia halfback.

Although Leemans is not as fast as "Nig" McCarver was or as good a passer as Johnny Fenlon was in his prime at G. W., he is much more versatile and a better all-around player than either of these two former Colonial stars. Tuffy is a much better broken-field runner and line plunger than McCarver or Fenlon can kick and pass well enough to get along in fast company. Tuffy played the role of star halfback, passer, kicker, and ace ball carrier for two seasons, and this year the coaches decided to give him the job of calling signals and later put him on the receiving end of passes where he looked like a cool million. The added burden of calling signals, said many sports enthusiasts, would ruin the best back the Colonials had ever had. But it didn't phase him in the least, for he has continued his stellar play and has often brought his team through when things began to look black.

Tuffy has been the offensive star of every game in which he has played in the last two years. Going into each and every game a marked man, Leemans has gone on kicking, passing, and running with the coolness of an iceberg. Despite the physical beatings he has been the recipient of the last two years, he has yet to show any signs of slowing up and under any and all conditions remains a great ball player. It made little difference to Leemans that Alabama was leading 39-0 or Rice was winning 41-0 for he went about his task with the enthusiasm of a sophomore trying to make the grade in "big time" football.

Since the beginning of the 1933 season Leemans has gained 2,305 yards by rushing the ball. He has averaged 23 yards on returning kick-offs and is sporting an average of 11½ yards on returning punts since the start of last season. His passes have gained a total of 989 yards in the last two years and this year he has completed 37 out of 102 attempts so far.

Not content with being the offensive star of every game, Leemans has proven himself a demon on the defense. In this writer's opinion he is without a doubt the best defensive back to grace the Colonial gridiron in recent years. Time after time during his three years at G. W. he has been the only man between an opposing ball-carrier and a touchdown. And time after time he has brought down his man. It was Leemans who brought down Sullivan of L. S. U. after crashing through three interferences, temporarily thwarting the Tiger's only score last season. Several times later in that same game he stopped the Tiger's offensive single handed.

Against Oklahoma last Thanksgiving he saved the game several times with his spectacular tackles in a slimy, slithering field of mud. Against Alabama this year Leemans stopped several ambitions Crimson Tide backs who had crossed the line of scrimmage and were casting longing eyes toward the goal line. Once in this game Leemans came up on a wide end sweep and threw a "Bama back" for a five-yard loss. More than once this season he has come up to the line of scrimmage to plug up a hole in the forward wall.

Yes, Leemans is a truly great ball player. Ask any coach or player that's played against him. Ask the sports writers around town. They'll tell you Leemans is about the best they've ever seen.

So, all you football fans at G. W., better take a good last look at Tuffy Thursday because it's liable to be many a day before another back as good as Leemans shows himself here.

Rifle Prospects Making Progress

"Rifle practice is indeed well on its way and the prospects look good," is the report from Coach Frank T. Parsons, Jr. "Serious practice for the varsity squad will probably start tomorrow or Friday. Several new prospective members will also be added to the squad by the end of this week."

To date, the following are posted as on the Varsity Rifle Squad: Tracy Mulligan, R. J. Martin, Lloyd Gebhart, Jack Harlan, Thomas Johnston, Charles Nash, Dana Wallace, and Morgan Thomas.

Howell Wins Fall Tennis Tourney

Defeats Morris Stolar In Straight Sets, 6-1, 6-0, 6-1

Spencer Howell defeated Morris Stolar in the finals of the Fall Intercollegiate tennis tournament Sunday in straight sets, 6-1, 6-0, 6-1.

Stolar put up a good battle, despite the scores, often taking the offensive, but a lack of steadiness cut down his chances. Despite a break which frequently sent clouds of dust and leaves swirling across the courts at Montrose Park, Howell struck out with accuracy and surety.

For the most part, however, he played a consistent defensive game, returning Stolar's swift ground strokes and volleys with sharply angled placements and delicate drop shots. As in previous matches, Howell's backhand and potent service were particularly effective offensive weapons.

The two games dropped, one in the first and another in the third set, brought the winner's grand total of games lost in the entire tournament to seven; an average of less than one game per set. In the second round Howell allowed one game to Ferguson, three to Surine in the quarterfinals, and one game in the semi-finals to Brasted, who incidentally had previously defeated Paul Gellman, 1934 champion.

Former G. W. Foes Face Stiff Tests

Former George Washington opponents run up against a stiff schedule this week when the five outstanding teams meet some strong out-lits.

Alabama will tie up with Vanderbilt in one of the best tilts. Since defeating the Colonials, the Crimson Tide has lost only to Mississippi State, while rolling up impressive victories over Tennessee, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Clemson, and Kentucky. Frank Thomas's team is favored to win this one.

Rice will play another tough Southwest Conference game against a hardy Baylor eleven. Only last week Baylor held the Southern Methodist Mustangs to a 10-0 victory, the same score the Mustangs beat Rice, so, on paper this game seems to be a toss-up.

West Virginia will play Loyola of New Orleans, and Wake Forest will oppose Davidson. Tulsa will face another strong southwest eleven in Arkansas, who beat Texas last Saturday.

Gymnasium Is Given Paint Job on Inside

After being neglected for as long as Jean Sexton's waistline measurement, the George Washington gym, more affectionately known as the "tin tabernacle," has finally received that final touch, a coat of paint on the inside and a floor refinishing will follow.

Though it is not publicly aired as of yet, it is rumored that the authorities are planning to add all that is needed to make the gym one of the finest in the East by putting plush lined cushions on all of the seats.

Sioux Play G. W. At Central

Pixleemen Are Out To Avenge Last Year's 7-0 Defeat

Beaten Once, Tied Twice, North Dakota to Present Alert Team

THE Colonials enter Central Stadium Thursday ready to "shoot the works" for two reasons: First, they are eager to avenge the unexpected 7-0 trimming handed them last year by the Nodaks; second, they want to make the final game of the 1935 season a big one, since it marks the end of the collegiate football careers of six of their outstanding men.

The Buff is favored over North Dakota, although the latter are the champions of the Northern Central Intercollegiate Conference, and until their set-back at the hands of Western Maryland's Green Terrors Saturday, were undefeated this season.

Favored Last Year
However, it is to be remembered that they were heavily favored last year, only to be fought to a standstill in a heavy rain and sunk when Big Louis Chumich interposed his 230-pound frame in front of one of Tuffy Leemans' punts and fell on the muddy ball for a touchdown.

Coach West is bringing a steering set of forwards here for the game, including the afore mentioned Chumich, Jerry Searight, who intercepted a Western Maryland pass and toted it over for the Sioux's lone score Saturday, and the veteran all-conference guard, Al Sowl. In the back-field the Nodaks feature Bob Campbell, 158-pound half, Jack Charbonneau and Ed Rorvig, 190-pound blocking back.

Play Alert Ball
The Sioux have been playing a particularly alert type of football this season, which accounts in large measure for the team's success. In six games the Dakotans have scored from no less than five touchdowns from blocked punts which they carried over for touchdowns.

Until they met a sturdy Western Maryland defense last week they had lost only one of their last 18 games. This season has been particularly auspicious. They opened with a smashing 45-0 win over Luther College, then flattened Morning-side, 28-7; scored over South Dakota, 25-0; beat St. Louis, 7-6, and Omaha, 14-6. South Dakota State and North Dakota State were tied 6-6 and 20-20, respectively.

Coach Pixlee, Max Farrington and Bill Reinhart made the trip to Baltimore Saturday, along with several members of the squad, giving the Green and White the "once-over."

33rd Intersectional Foe
North Dakota is the 33rd intersectional opponent George Washington has scheduled in 54 games since 1930. The Colonials have won 14, lost 14 and tied 4.

Debaters Told 'We Americans Are All Fools'

Price, Goodykoontz Debate Cambridge Students On Judiciary

"When speaking before an American audience, always remember that the faces in front of you are the faces of fools, and that should give you confidence."

This was the advice given C. J. M. Alport and John Royle, Cambridge University debaters, by a member of Parliament on their departure for America. Alport told the 300 who crowded Corcoran 10 last Wednesday to hear the Cambridge-George Washington debate.

Alport and Royle, representing the Cambridge Union Society, upheld the affirmative of the question, "Resolved; That the judiciary should have no power to overrule the decisions of the executive and the legislature." Dix Price and William Goodykoontz, of George Washington, spoke for the negative.

The affirmative held that since the members of Congress are the elected representatives of the people, it is unnecessary and undemocratic to subject their acts to the scrutiny of another body of men. Secondly, they argued that the views of the Supreme Court are generally conservative and lag behind the current social needs, and therefore that judicial review is a hindrance to social progress.

The negative contended that the basic will of the people is expressed in the Constitution and that the Supreme Court stands as the safeguard of the Constitution against the acts of any legislative assembly at any time. To abrogate the power of the Court to declare laws unconstitutional might open the doors to a wave of Fascist legislations, they said, citing instances of the power of organized minorities to influence Congress. If changes in the basic law are needed, there are means provided in the Constitution itself for necessary amendment.

Leemans Is Among Football Finishers

the ball go into the end zone for a safety. In all of 1935 years of competition at George Washington, Sid has never been removed from the game because of injuries, a tribute to the grit of this 200 pound lineman.

Another 200 pounder who played next to Kolker is the veteran Red Rathjen. Always a bulwark on the defense, Red reached the heights against Tulsa last year when he intercepted a Tulsa pass and lumbered 30 yards for a score.

Both Rathjen and Kolker represent the best in G.W. linemen for many a year.

Plotnick, A Triple Threat

Benny Plotnick, another senior, had the misfortune to be in the same year as Leemans. He has played for three years and this year subbed for Leemans at quarter. A triple threat man, perhaps his forte is his bullet-like passes. Plotnick's main difficulty is his inability to follow his interference. However, he frequently hit his stride and put up a good game as he did against West Virginia. Benny intercepted a pass and established a 1935 record by racing 93 yards for a touchdown in this fracas.

Last but not least is Hank Vonder Bruegge, a more than fair end who never reached the peak that was expected of him. He has played on and off for the past three years, but was a regular only during the early part of this year. However, two sophomore ends, Morris and Yurwitz, grabbed the positions along with the reformed backfield man, Ray Hanken.

The graduation of these men means the loss of a great deal of color and strength, but with an eye always to the future, the G.W. teams to come will carry the thoughts of these hardy Pilemen as an inspiration to greater efforts.
